

Jours de la semaine.

Once upon a time, there was a family of seven who lived in a small house in the countryside

The family consisted of a mom, dad, and five children

Every day of the week, the family would take turns doing different activities

On Mondays, the mom would take the children to the park to have a picnic and play games

On Tuesdays, the dad would teach them about science and technology

Wednesdays were reserved for arts and crafts

Thursdays were dedicated to sports and outdoor activities

On Fridays, the family would go to the library and pick out books to read together

Saturday was for cleaning and organizing the house

And finally, on Sundays, the family would go to church and spend time with their extended family.

No matter which day of the week it was, the family was always together and making memories

They reminded each other that no matter what, the most important thing was spending time together.

And that's how the family learned the joys of the days of the week
